spinners & knitters

A group of women, all skilled in the arts of spinning and knitting up wool from the raw state of a fleece, gave a demonstration of their handiwork a few weeks ago in Waitara. The demonstration took the form, not only of a display of finished articles, but also demonstrations of actual spinning, using the timeless spinning wheel method, and the hand knitting of garments from this wool.

Mrs. M. Dineen was one of the spinners.

THE AUSTRALIAN ENZ

New Zealand group, Split Enz have been in Australia now for some three months. It is almost always a difficult job for an unknown kiwi band to make it in Aussie but Split Enz seem to be doing rather well so far. Their initial exposure has been appearances on most all of the major TV shows in the country and now they have the big break coming. The group have been signed by Mushroom Records to record an album in Festival's Sydney studios. The main point of interest is that it is planned to bring in a 'name' English producer for the sessions, which will be recorded on a 24 track machine. Split Enz have made a point of only performing at concerts in Australia and this seems to have paid off for them. They have toured on the Roxy Music shows throughout the country and have been acclaimed by Roxy members. Bryan Ferry has stated that the Enz are the best group ever to appear on the same bill as them. No mean compliment. After a recent appearance on the ABC Countdown, the station's switch board was jammed with calls from people raving about the group. The best publicity of all. The Enz toured Australia again last month; this time with Leo Sayer. Now of course they have the matter of recording the album on their minds. After the New Zealand release of the album a New Zealand tour is planned.

BEECHED

On the New Zealand scene, a group that appear to be making a lot of noise (and not without reason) is Beech. They have been seen around the nation on tours like Chuck Berry, Little Richard, Clarence (Frogman) Henry and Osibisa. Their most recent tour was with Roxy Music and they have recently been given television exposure via the show 'Grunt Machine' with songs 'Ready to Run' and 'Country Man'. Beech make a point of not accepting any resident positions with clubs or hotels. They seem to enjoy the challenge of working in new places with new faces almost all the time. This of course is probably good for both the group and for their fans and fan club.

NEW ALBUMS

IRON BUTTERFLY.....Scorching Beauty.....MCA 7779.

I was of the opinion that Iron Butterfly were dead and buried, nothing but a pleasant memory in the minds of those of us with long memories. It was therefore a great shot in the arm to see a new LP release by Butterfly. It will be remembered that Iron Butterfly had several membership changes during their life. This album is recorded by an Iron Butterfly that consists of members from the early group and the one that replaced it, plus a couple of new members. They are still recognisably Iron Butterfly - hard, futuristic and non-compromising - yet their sound is not as dated as we might expect. The opening track '1975 Overture' has a very futuristic space feel to it and while some of the other tracks rely on the solidness of their sound, still others tend to remind of early Jefferson Airplane and early Iron Butterfly. The album is one that is going to find a ready space on the record shelves of many followers of rock music.

RONNIE MILSAP.....Pure Love.....RCA 1-0500.

It is not really very often that country and western music fans get the chance to discover a new artist on record. This then, is such an opportunity. Milsap sings songs old and new, well known and not so well known. The singer is one of undoubted ability, Southern US in style, but one who deserves a place in every C & W fan's record library. I think you'll find he has a lot to offer. Sample the content on this album.....Pure Love (best track on the album) Four Walls, Behind Closed Doors, Amazing Love, Streets of Gold and Blue Ridge Mountains Turnin' Green.

THE KINKS.....Preservation Act 2.....RCA 2-5040.

This new double album from the Kinks contains a theme throughout of a fight between extreme right and extreme left political ideologies and a bid to take over the nation. There is commentary throughout by an assumed radio announcer who gives radio like comment on the take-over. How the story ends we shan't say. You'll have to find that one out yourself. The music itself is very much in the Kinks vogue, although it does relate to the theme of the commentary on the double-album. There's a song about Mr Black, the champion of the puritans and the other work all relates to the total theme. I found the work entertaining and different from previous Kinks work, though very much in their own tried a true style.

The Split Enz

A short lived attack.

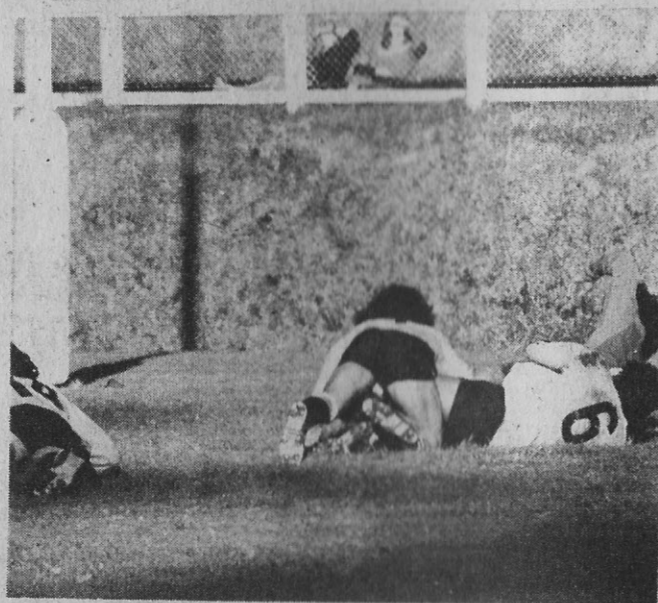

Felled, but he's an elusive one.

Time and time again, Taranaki went over the line, adding to their score.

Once you have your man down, keep him there.

LEAGUE

TARANAKI A. v. MANAWATU

The Taranaki team met their first challenge for the Rugby League Cup head on. They again showed the driving form that won them the cup from Canterbury and retained it against this challenge from Manawatu soundly licking them by 46 to 13. Manawatu played well, all in all, but the local side is at present riding the crest of a wave and were in unbeatable form which was truly reflected in the final score.

Over the line in the corner, and another score added to the already high total.

VOTE FOR CONTINUANCE NO LICENCE

Militant females demanded an end to drinking.

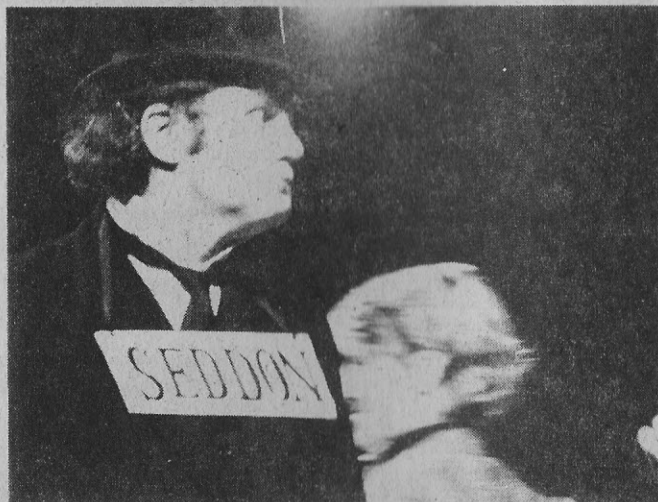

The earlier fight to give women the vote.

Oh Temperance

The story of the play 'Oh Temperance' which was performed by Wellington's Downstage Players, in the New Plymouth Opera House recently, concerns the wishes of women to get the vote. Women wanted the vote to be able to vote for 'No License'. They reasoned that suffering was caused by men being drunk so often. With the help of a Mr Taylor they managed to ban the 'booze' in most parts of the South Island and some parts of the North Island. The difficulty was that they had to win two thirds of the vote to obtain a total New Zealand law for 'No License'. History of course relates that they didn't win.

Mr Taylor won the women with a speech for 'No License'.

LEAGUE

TARANAKI B. v. MANAWATU B.

Rugby League is enjoying an excellent season in Taranaki and the excellent win a few weeks ago, which brought the cup into Taranaki possession, seemed to have boosted morale at all levels.

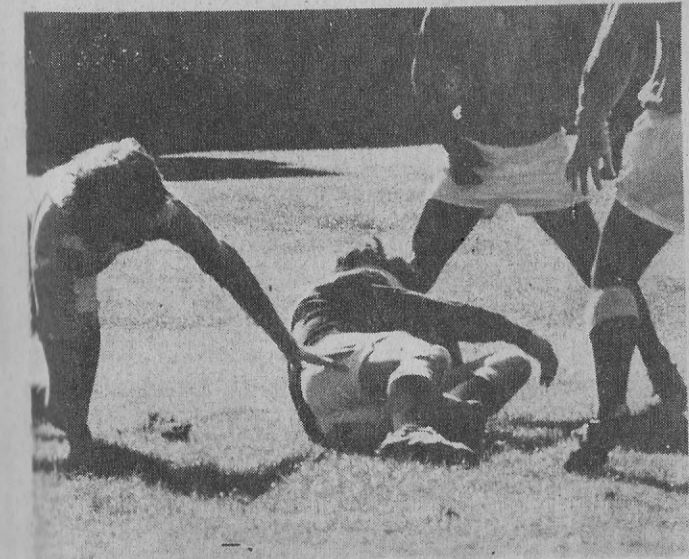

This is reflected in the win by Taranaki B. over the Manawatu B. team when they won their match by 30 to 11. Taranaki has introduced several new faces into the B. team this season and they seem to have given the team more depth.

Golf Club Cabaret

The Manukorihi Golf Club at Waitara held their annual cabaret in the War Memorial Hall, Waitara, last month. It was a big cabaret in all manners. The crowd was big, the band was big, and so was the value of the entertainer — Eddie Lowe. For many, this was the cabaret of the year.

I wonder how many of you took the opportunity to remind yourselves of the attractions that abound in this province of ours while you were at the Taranaki A & P Society's BUILD EXPO 75 last month!

Situated just inside the main entrance was an exhibit prepared by the Taranaki Promotion Association. It featured the two display consoles used at promotions outside Taranaki — at Palmerston North and twice in Auckland.

The consoles depict various provincial attractions in over 100 colour photographs. A key board of push buttons each supported by captions, allows viewers to choose the scene and sequence of selection.

An estimate of the number of times the buttons have been activated in four exhibitions (Palmerston North, Auckland twice and Build Expo) is a staggering 3.5 millions, without one single failure.

Next stop for our rather unique promotional equipment is the NZ Industries Fair in Christchurch during the August school holidays.

HUSBAND-HUNTING is the only sport where the animal caught, has to buy a licence.

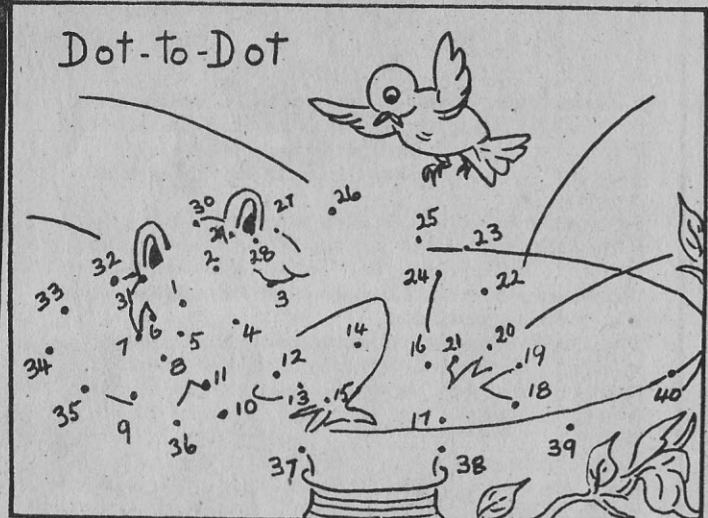

Earnings from tourism in the year ended February were over $103 millions, an increase of 32 per cent on the previous year; and $67 millions more than from cheese exports and $53 millions more than from timber exports.

Which illustrates that tourism is 'BIG BUSINESS'. And in recognition of that, the Taranaki Promotion Association is attempting to gain a greater slice of the cake for this region. Already tourism (all visitors are classed as tourists) is injecting between $5-6 millions annually into Taranaki. And that rubs off on a wide sector of the community.

Did you know that 200,000 people visited our showpiece, Mount Egmont, last year? It's a record. A break-down of the visitation: North Egmont 60,500; East Egmont 77,500; Dawson Falls 55,000. The figures only serve to illustrate that Egmont remains our premier attraction.

Rifle Shoot

The Rifle Club held another series of Championship shooting at the Rewa Rewa Range in New Plymouth, a few weeks back. The weather was miserable with heavy rain falling for most of the day, but this did not deter the shooters who kept up a heavy barrage at the target area throughout the day.

Rain made the day rather miserable never-the-less, shooters kept on with it.
