PEOPLE

Pause by some neglected graveyard for a while to muse and ponder
On a half effaced inscription
Written with little skill of songcraft.
Homely phrases, but each letter
Full of hope and yet of heartbreak
Full of all the tender pathos
Of the here and hereafter.

"Song of Hiawatha"
Long fellow.

George Charles Aiken originally came from Aberdeen, moving up from Wanganui with his brother-in-law, Alexander Howie, to farm in the Waverley district. These men do not appear to have owned land in partnership, but rather to have gone their separate ways in the buying of land. Most known of the Aiken homes is "Gowanlea" which was bought off the Winchcombes. Although the original homestead was burnt down and rebuilt as the present home, "Gowanlea" is associated most with Alexander Aiken and his wife Jessie Dickie.

The Aiken family is still farming in this area, being traditionally a farming orientated family.

BOURKE

Edward Bourke and Honora Kelly came out from Ireland via Australia where he worked for some time as a prison officer. He arrived in New Zealand in the 1880's, turning his hand to farming — first of all leasing land on the beach country then buying the property owned by William Potts Snr., now owned by David Potts, as well as the Experimental Farm.

The family then moved to Village Road, the property now owned by Terry and Tom Bourke.

Of the original families, only the descendants of Jack and Tom have remained in the Waverley area.

by Noeline Bradley

John and Neil Bradley were gold mining in New South Wales, Australia, before coming to the Wanganui district where they were involved in construction contracts for the railway. In 1875 they rode up the beach to Waverley to attend a land auction and purchased with gold, a property of 482 acres bounding Lake Okoia at Moumahaki and the "Derry Farm" property of 212 acres bounding Lake Waiiau. They farmed in partnership until 1878 when Neil departed for the South Island. John continued to farm both properties until his death in 1905.

His eldest sons, James and John who were farming at Ball Hill Station, Mangamahu, managed the estate until the youngest son Lawrence was of age.

On Laurie's death in 1953 his son Peter took over the "Derry Farm" property on which in 1945 he had established a Southdown Stud, converting part to a dairy unit in 1980 on which his son sharemilks today. The beach property was taken over by E.C. Bradley and was sold in 1976 to D.V. Pearce.

BREMER

After having arranged for the purchase of 300 acres of land at Kohi, Philip and his three oldest sons set off for Waverley, driving before them their herd of cattle which would form the nucleus of their stock on their new farm.

It was a year before Dorothea and the rest of the family arrived by Cobb and Co., to Waverley arriving outside the Commercial Hotel, from where they rode the last few miles on horseback with their belongings on packhorse.

The new home with its steeply sloping gables was called "Kohinoor". The original house was destroyed by fire, but the property bought by Philip is now farmed by Grant Gulliver.

The story of the Bremer family is written in the book "Harvey Come Quick" by Dorothea Joblin, the daughter of Philip's youngest daughter Tilly, and is essential reading for anyone interested in the area. Unfortunately the book is out of print, but it can be requested through a library.

BREWER

William farmed at Waihau in Waverley on the land which is still farmed by his descendants, Jenny Boon and her husband Roger and family. William Brewer was born in Birmingham in 1845 and was 10 when his family emigrated to New Zealand.

William Brewer came to Waitotara when he was employed with the Government Survey staff. During the Maori Wars he fought with Captain Cameron and after the war contracted with Charles Durie to supply meat to the troops. After hostilities ceased he married Helen Durie in 1870 and subsequently produced six children. Brewer was active in the community, serving with the Waitotara-Whenuakura Road Board, Patea County Council, Hawera Racing Club, Waverley Waitotara Racing Club, Hawera Hunt, Wanganui-Egmont Hunt and the Waverley Tennis Club.

Brewer also bred, owned and trained racehorses, a family trait still very evident in his descendants today. The family also was very involved in hunting, and held hunts on their property. Some glorious old photos remain of this still.

CUNNINGHAM

Introduction by Ian Cunningham

Alfred Cunningham came to Waverley from Christchurch, his family originally emigrating from Ross, Ireland. His wife, Matilda Dewey, had come from York, England and the family had settled in Governor's Bay.

His arrival in Waverley co-incided with the building of the Catholic Church, and he and Matilda were the first couple to be married in it. (It is interesting that his grand-daughter, Denise, was the last to be married in the old Catholic Church.)

Alfred worked as a wheelwright for Taylor and Bremner all his working life and is buried in the Waverley Cemetery.

Of his four sons, Alfred and William started a motor business in Waverley about 1920, remaining in partnership until 1940 when Alfred formed a new company known today as A.B. Cunningham Ltd., now run under the directorship of his children, Ian, Hugh and Ursula. William went on to establish the business now known as Waverley Motors.

DALLISON

Although the Dallison's did not arrive until 1919 when they bought out Muir's, I include them because of the impact that E.C. and successive Dallison's have had on Waverley. E.C. (Edwin Charles) was a great believer in giving to the community and encouraged his family to be the same. Hence we have E.C. a life member of the Bowls, life member and president of the Rugby Club, a life member of the Golf Club, chairman of the committee to build the town baths and active in the affairs of the church. He was also on the Town Board.

His wife, Mabel, was the first president of the Plunket Society, a position since held by her daughter Ruby. Ross Dallison is the Mayor of Waverley and also a life member and president of the Football Club.

EDWIN CHARLES (1886-1956) m Mabel Florence Read

Edwin later married Mabel's sister RUBY MERIVALE (d 1950) who already had a son from a previous marriage — Joseph Smith. There was no issue from this marriage.

DALTON

James Dalton came to New Zealand from Hamilton, Australia and married Margaret Thurston of Wanganui. They settled in Taranaki for some time before moving to Waverley and buying a butchery and bakery. While he was in business Jimmy used to lend his butcher's phaeton for people to bring their expectant wives into the nursing home. He used to joke that his horse spent so much time outside the home that when he was on delivery the horse used to refuse to drive by it!

Dalton later sold out the business to Eddie Symes. It was later bought by Heginbotham, and Dalton used to work for him as a butcher.

Dalton also served on the Town Council as Chairman.

Dalton's family remains in Waverley through Barbara Kennerley.

DICKIE
James and Jane

James and Jane were born in Scotland and married before emigrating to Canada first, and then to New Zealand. Interestingly enough the name of the place in Canada, Galt, has remained with the Dickie men ever since, being seen in the first and successive generations.

The Dickies came out to New Zealand in the early 1840's settling first in Wellington, Turakina and then Waverley. James bought land in the first land sales, 1873. The Dickies were then, and have remained since, a predominantly farming family in the Waverley district.

DUFFY

Stephen Duffy emigrated from County Armagh, Ireland, his wife Anne Curry coming from the neighbouring County Fermanagh. Stephen fought with the 65th Imperial Regiment as a foot soldier, and received the New Zealand Medal. He retired to Waverley in 1865 – on his army pension – 6d (5c) a day, and bought the section still owned by his grandson Len Duffy in Hussey Street, off one Private Henry Wood who was allocated it by the army in 1869.

In 1891 he bought Section 194 at Okutuku, an area of 51 acres “more or less” according to the document of sale! It is recorded that Stephen paid twenty-two pounds ($44.00) for this property. He also owned town section 9.

EDWARDS

Janet Edwards is the remarkable woman referred to in "Harvey Come Quick" by Dorothea Joblin. An experienced, compassionate kind woman in regards to midwifery, she was responsible for the arrival of many of the children in Waverley. Janet Edwards used to travel around Waverley to homes to deliver babies, and also went with Dr Harvey when required. As well she managed to bring up a family of 11 children! The Edwards were responsible for starting up the first nursing home in Waverley. This was a private home which was eventually bought out by the Hospital Board when the Edwards moved away. Janet's daughter, Lizzie, also became a nurse and a career woman. Both she and her mother were highly respected in the Waverley community. Charles Edwards was a platelayer, working on the railways tracks.

ELMSLIE

Peter Elmslie arrived in Dunedin from Greenock, Scotland in January 1867 with his uncle, Rev. Elmslie, eventually settling in Wanganui. There Peter took up his trade of a blacksmith and met W. Robertson with whom he set up a partnership in Wairoa. The hard work to establish their property was halted by the Maori Wars, and Peter enlisted with the Wairoa Volunteer Rifles. At the end of the war Peter bought out his partner. A house was completed when Peter met Ann McGregor at Wanganui and married her in 1872. Ann was born at Dornach, Scotland and had emigrated with the family.

Ferneydell was their home until the family grew bigger, then Hillside was built with the help of Ann's father and the architect.

Peter was also an active member of the Okutuku Road Board from 1884, when it began, until 1917, having been chairman for the last 12 years.

In the 1890's Peter bought land inland of Kohi for his sons. He was also very active in the church and was office bearer at St Andrew's.

Between 1900 and 1914 Peter bought the properties adjoining Hillside. About 1910 he acquired 3,500 acres of land 24 miles from Waverley in the Kaipara District.

The Elmslie's lost four of their menfolk in the war, but the family was large and is still a large family in the Waverley area. (The Legacy of Tui, and Petticoat Pioneers both detail life of this family.)

FARR

Introduction & Genealogy by Peter Farr

Frederick Farr, early settler of Waverley, sailed from Devonport, England on 1 April 1863 with No 4 Co., of the Royal Irish Regiment. However he had previously served with his regiment in the Crimean War (1854-56) and the great Indian Mutiny (1857-58) before seeing service in the Maori Wars, 1863-1869, in New Zealand. Farr achieved distinction as a scout in all the regiments he served with, being highly esteemed for his cunning and stealth in enemy territory.

Farr served with a mixed force of Imperial and Colonial Forces under General Cameron, General Chute, Colonel Northcroft and Colonel Whitmore. He saw action up the West Coast up to White Cliffs, at Porihaka, Nukumaru, Te Ngutu-O-Temanu (when Major Von Tempsky was killed), Waikato, Rangiriri and Ngawhaia and "Little Taranaki" up the Patea River. He also fought at the Hill Fortress at Weraroa and at Waitotara and Kai Iwi.

Frederick married Ellen Ryan, a widow (nee McConaghy) at Wanganui on 29 April, 1870, and settled at Moumahaki, Waverley where he farmed for 56 years.

He died at Moumahaki at the great age of 105 years. He was survived by three daughters and five sons and predeceased by one daughter.

7. THOMAS (b 1879) m Agnes Mae Matheson #
 Major Thomas Farr, DSO, MC, MID., was a famous New Zealand soldier. He enlisted in the Regiment of Royal NZ Artillery, NZ Permanent Forces in 1900, and at the outbreak of war in 1914 he sailed for Egypt with the main forces NZEF as a Section Commander of 3rd NZ Battery, NZ Field Artillery. He re-embarked for the Dardanelles in 1915 being promoted in the same year to Captain. He was later withdrawn to Egypt where he assumed the appointment of Commanding Officer, 2nd Brigade Ammunition Column. For gallant and distinguished services in the Dardanelles Campaign he was awarded the Military Cross and mentioned in the despatches of General Sir Ian Hamilton.

When the NZEF was regrouped in 1916 he was sent to France. In 1917 he was promoted to Major and in 1918 left the UK for New Zealand. For distinguished services in the 1918 campaign he was especially mentioned in the despatches of Field Marshall, Sir Douglas Haig, and for conspicuous gallantry in action he was awarded the DSO.

After the war Farr was posted back to the RNZA and from that date held various appointments, chief of which were Adjutant Wellington FA Brigade, Staff Officer to Director of Artillery at GHQ, Artillery Instructor GHQ School in Trentham, Artillery Instructor Central Military Command, Officer commanding RNZA Central Command, Assistant Adjutant-General at GHQ and for 13 months he carried out the duties of Adjutant-General at GHQ. ## FOOKES

The best summary of Albert Cracroft Fookes' life was in a clipping dated 2/8/1916. It reads as follows:—

It is with regret that we have to record the death, which occurred this morning, of Mr Albert Cracroft Fookes, who for many years was one of the most prominent citizens of this town. He was born in Kent in 1839, was educated in Oxfordshire, and after leaving school was for seven years with a banking firm in London. In 1861 he came out to Otago in the ship "Black Eagle", and after a short experience in the goldfields, he came north. The Maori War was in progress at the time and on his arrival at Wellington he joined the Defence Force as a trooper. He soon won promotion and was transferred to the Taranaki Military Settlers, serving with the rank of Lieutenant through the east and west coast campaigns from 1864 to 1865, and being awarded the New Zealand war medal. He received a grant of land near Waverley upon which he made a home, having married a daughter of the late Mr Thomas Hirst. At the time of the Titokowaru outbreak in 1868 the country was in such a disturbed state that Mr Fookes, fearing for the safety of his wife and young child, left the farm and established himself in business at Waverley as a storekeeper. This business he carried on for several years. In 1876 he came to New Plymouth and acquired a large block of land, upon which he successfully established the Midhurst Special Settlement. In 1881 he commenced business in Devon Street as a land broker, which he carried on for many years. He took a keen interest in local and general politics. He was the second Mayor of New Plymouth, in 1878, the late Mr Arthur Standish having been the first in 1876 and 1877. Subsequently he served two terms as a Borough Councillor. He also did useful service for several years on the School Committee and High School Board of Governors. Some years ago he gave up his business and has since lived in retirement. He leaves a widow and a family of six sons and five daughters to mourn their loss. The sons are Messrs H.E. Fookes (of the Post and Telegraph Department), T.C. Fookes (Stratford), Dr E.F. Fookes (New Plymouth), A.E. Fookes and W. Fookes (Auckland), and George Fookes (New Plymouth), and the daughters are Mrs C. Nichol (Ashburton), Mrs Kelsey (Waikato), Mrs P.B. Fitzherbert (Auckland), and the Misses M. and G. Fookes (New Plymouth).

For some time past Mr Fookes was in rather feeble health, but he was in town so lately as Friday last. On Sunday evening he was quite as well as usual when he retired to bed, but a little later he was seized with a stroke and became unconscious, from which condition he never recovered and eventually passed away early this morning.

A.C. Fookes bought land in the first land sales, 1873. Fookes Street in Waverley is named after him.

HARVEY

Doctor Harvey was the first resident doctor in the Waverley district and there is no doubt that he had a tremendous following. An extremely clever man he pioneered medicine in Twilight Sleep, a method designed to bring comfort to women in the throes of labour. He also was very interested in the human eye and his treatment of eye problems was ahead of his time. An intensely dedicated man, he originally covered the Waverley area on horseback until he bought a car, and later for many years drove one donated by the district.

There is no doubt that Dr Harvey learnt to the limit of his profession, studying in England at the turn of the century, and working as a surgeon in the war. He was very much respected by other members of the medical profession as well. Of his three children none now live in Waverley. His second eldest, Dorothea Joblin, wrote the story of his life in the book "Harvey Come Quick". She gives fascinating glimpses into Waverley in the past.

The following is from a newspaper clipping of 4 August 1927:

"A Waverley resident forwards us the following tribute to the late Dr A.G. Harvey, as an expression of the warm feeling of regard in which he was held by all people and all classes in the district in which he laboured:—

A stranger passing through Waverley on the afternoon of July 26 would have wondered at the great multitude of people who had gathered there. From far and near they had come, from all parts of the North Island, as well as from the nearby townships and the lonely out-back settlements.

As the stranger drew nearer he would have noticed that there was scarcely a face in all that crowd which was not either stained with tears or drawn as if in pain, and he would then have known that a great sorrow had befallen these people. Had he watched he would have seen that this great gathering was in honour of one whose soul had returned to its quiet rest and whose body was that day being sadly laid in the grave. And had he asked the name he would have marvelled at the tenderness of the tone in which it was spoken, and at the eyes brimming with tears. The great masses of floral tributes, too would have revealed to him that the one who had passed away had been deeply and truly loved.

Had he questioned still further, and had he been fortunate enough to find one sufficiently unmoved to voice the feelings of the people he would have heard something like this:— 'We are laying aside the remains of our dearly loved Doctor Harvey. Never will we see his like again. He life was one of devotion to his profession and to the people whom he served. He was loved by all, from the very oldest to the tiniest child. He never spared himself, but gave of his best at all times and in all places, alike to rich and to poor, to pakeha and to Maori, to Catholic and to Protestant, in fine or stormy weather, by day or by night, always. We are indeed the poorer for his passing, but very rich in sweet memories of his many kindnesses and of his help through many dark days.'

And the stranger would have wondered that any man could have been so beloved. But had he searched for the secret of this great love, he would have found that here was one who had faithfully followed in the footsteps of Jesus Christ. Who was the friend of the people. Who went about doing good. Through all the years to come the memory of Doctor Harvey's gentle personality will be as the fragrance of the sweetest flower to all those who were privileged to know him and to be ministered to by him. His life was lofty and in full accord his death: on duty exigent he went and, on the high tide of accomplishment, met there his Overlord."

HOGG

By Ray Wall

Mr Daniel Munn Hogg, his wife Annie, daughters Annie Gordon Hogg, Margaret McDonald Hogg, Munn Hogg and Sarah Barbour Hogg, came to Waverley I think, in 1973 or 74. John McLean Hogg was born in Waverley in 1876. The Hoggs had a general store and it was situated where Cunningham's Garage now stands. They sold everything from a needle to an anchor as the saying goes. They sold groceries, drapery, hardware, etc. I know they dispensed prescriptions for a doctor. I remember my grandfather saying that the doctor complained that he did not charge enough and his patients would never get better if they didn't charge more!

The Hogg family survives in Waverley through the Wall family.

Rev David Hogg hailed from Haddington, Scotland. His first wife was a Barbour. Second wife not known.

Their son Daniel Munn Hogg married Annie Gordon and moved to Waverley, thereby establishing the family here.

HONE

Three members of the Hone family came to Waverley. They were:—

(a) WILLIAM HONE (1845-1928) #

William Hone appears to have been a very colourful character. He arrived in New Zealand in 1862 spending time at the Otago Goldfields, going to sea, and also felling trees in Ashurst. All of this is referred to in his book of poems which he left to be printed after his death. It was originally as a farmer he moved to Kohi, buying land there, but it is for his inventions that he merits special mention. Many people may not be aware that the mill known as Dickie's Flour Mill was built and owned by William first. He also invented the wool press patented by Taylor and Bremner and also a hay sweep, all of which points to the intelligent nature of the man. William never married, retiring to live with his brother Tom.

(b) THOMAS HONE (1848-1932) m Florence Elizabeth Emily Miller (1866-1962)—

Thomas and his sister Mary followed William to Kohi a few years after his arrival. William must have written back extolling the virtues of the area, and Tom came out with his sister buying land in partnership with William, later buying William out.

Frederick Hooper was born in Bedfordshire, England and began working on the land at an early age, an occupation which he followed all his life.

In 1884 Fred's uncle sponsored his emigration to New Zealand. He was just 17 years old when he set foot in Canterbury where he worked teams and the threshing mills on the Canterbury Plains for several years before moving to Dannevirke where he met and married Eliza Jane Ryan. The Hoopers stayed in Dannevirke for a while and then later moved to Meremere and then Karahaki.

In 1906, 22 years after his arrival in the country, Fred bought property at Ngutuwera which was mostly bush. By doing so he established his family in the farming tradition still very much evident today.

To clear the land, Fred bred and worked draught horses and ploughed by contract on neighbouring properties.

Fred and his wife raised a family of 12, and Fred was instrumental in setting up the Ngutuwera School. He originally intended to donate two acres of his centrally located farm for a school, but the balance of the local population insisted on paying twenty pounds ($40) for one, with Fred donating the other.

Fred was later chairman for 16 years and a committee member for 36 years resigning only when he and his wife moved into Waverley. He was then over 80 years old.

In 1950 his wife died and not long after that Fred died too at the age of 84 years.

Fred also served on the Waitotara Roads Board and the Patea County Council, but those who remember him, remember him more as a man of the land than an administrator.

HOWIE Alexander and Anna

In 1854 the first members of the Howie family landed in Wellington and settled near Wanganui — a little township only 14 years old.

Life at that time not only was hard, but hazardous, with the likelihood of a sudden attack from the Maoris.

After the Maori Wars, Alexander Howie and his brother-in-law George Aiken (Helen's husband), took up land in Waverley.

Alexander helped build Elmslie's home "Ferney Dell". He also was director of Waverley Dairy Co., an elder of the Presbyterian Church (1876-1905) and an office bearer.

ALEXANDER HOWIE (1793-1889) m Anna Margaret Aiken (1822-1899)

- e) Annie Beatrice (died young, 1895)
- f) Leslie Edwin (b 1898) m Rosalind Clarke (Papatoetoe)
- g) Douglas Edwin (b 1898)

William and his family must have moved up to the Auckland area.

4. GEORGE H. (b 1855) m Helen Catherine Mathieson (b 1867)

Office bearer St Andrews.

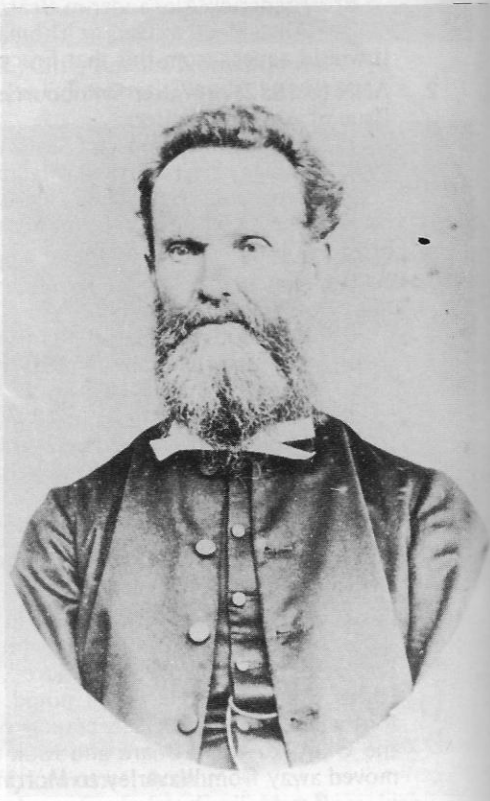

Captain George Howie was born in Wanganui in 1855 and moved to Waverley in 1870, his family being the first white settlers to live outside the town. His farm of 750 acres was called "Strathmore". He was connected with the Wairoa Mounted Rifles from 1873. He was a noted prize winner as a marksman and was a noted footballer, representing his county on several occasions. He was also a member of the Okutuku Road Board and took an active interest in local affairs. George later moved away from Waverley to Morrinsville and became mayor, 1923-25.
